

SEE OUTSIDE OF TO-DAY'S PAPER.

Advertisements for the Tribune of Monday must be sent in before 10 o'clock on Saturday evening as the publication office of this paper is not open on Sunday.

Members in the city who do not receive this paper at an early hour are requested to leave word at the office, or to send a card to the carrier, before seven o'clock. Carriers failing to accomplish this will be required to give up their routes.

Persons wishing the Tribune left at their dwellings or places of business regularly every morning will please leave their address at the Publishing Office, or send a note through the Post-Office. Terms, 12 cents a week, payable to the Carrier.

The Chicago Convention to select Delegates to the Convention at which amendments to the Constitution are to be considered, will meet on Monday next, at half past seven, at the Broadway Hotel.

PHILIP HONE, Chairman.

The Pennsylvania Tolls, with Additions and Improvements.

We thought, when the Protective Policy had been broken down by the direct efforts of Polk and Dallas, the very men whom Pennsylvania was induced to support as more liberal for Protection than Mr. Clay, that the most brazen impudence must for once shrink abashed at the full exposure of its mendacity. But, no—in the lowest deep there was a lower still. The Loco-Frogs of Pittsburgh, Pa. have put forth an Address to the People of Allegheny County, telling them that they ought by all means to send to Congress Wilson McCandless.

The convalesced extensively as State Elector for Polk and Protection, and wrote a letter to Clarion County, declaring that Polk a better Protectionist than Clay. The following is a part of their reasons for Clay. "The following is a part of their reasons for Clay, as copied from their local organ into Mr. Polk's Union."

"Who will be most likely to succeed in gratifying our wishes on the subject of the amendment of the Tariff, those who are in political fellowship with the party which holds the reins of power in the Executive and Legislative branches of the Government. We are prepared to say, fellow citizens, that the amendment of the Tariff of 1846, in the hands of the Pennsylvania Tolls, will be a success. High in the confidence of the Democracy, the whole party, the Administration, will come to the rescue, and with grateful attention, protect the standard-bearer of the Tariff. On the other hand, should the Tariff be left in the hands of Whiggery, and sent down to Congress known only by their bitter hostility to Democratic principles, men, and means, who are able to save her, and become the victims of a misplaced confidence in those who have not the power, even had they the will and capacity to sustain it."

Nobody short of McCandless himself could have dictated that. The mendacity is as "matchless" as Day & Martin's Blacking ever did. It is Clarion letter all over. Nobody knows better than the writer that the only hope for a revision of the Tariff rests on the force and not on the good will of "the powers that be." Let Pennsylvania go heavily against them, and they may be driven to modify their Tariff to coax her back again. But let her kiss the rod, however sullenly, and she is doomed. Her Southern masters care nothing for her sulk on the Tariff so long as she goes with them on other questions, and votes an ample supply of Polks and Walkers into the high places of the land. Let her sustain their President, and they will take care of their Tariff. But let her once give them a taste of her heels instead of taking the bit again in her mouth, and they will understand that something must be done—that blarney won't answer, and she must be reconciled. This would put an entirely new face on the business.

All the time that brown Loco-Frogs leaders have been telling her that the duties on Coal and Iron shall be increased if the will only desire to the old time, their brethren in other States are loudly protesting that nothing of the kind can take place—that the next step must be a reduction of the duties on Coal and Iron, or the repeal of all duties whatever. The leaders see this and understand it—but they think they can cheat a majority of the People out of their votes, and very likely they may. We shall look with curiosity and interest.

Felix G. McConnell.

This unfortunate man is known to the public only as a Congressional drunkard, buffoon, and utterer of the most revolting blasphemy and obscenity. And yet that was only one side of his character—he was not only a successful exercise upon it. He was at heart a kind, generous, brave, good man. With considerable natural force of intellect, a full flow of animal spirits, a social disposition and strong passions, trained in a semi-civilized region where intoxicating liquors form too generally the staple of sociability and drunkenness is by many deemed the name of enjoyment, he fell a victim to influences which he had not wisdom either to appreciate nor strength of principle ultimately to resist and overcome. He became a drunkard, a debauchee, a debased, phrenzied creature, hurrying on to destruction and madly glorying in his shame. The end has just reached us.

McCormell is dead; may his faults be buried in oblivion and his foul mind mercy. But those who steadily fed the infernal fire which consumed him, who made a gain of his infirmity and fattened on his degradation, are mainly living—respected, honored citizens and Christians. He has been freely supplied with liquor when already crazy drunk in the very proudest hotels of Washington, when reeling in antics too degrading to be witnessed, and belching out filth and blasphemy too horrible to be heard. Is it not dreadful to think that this business of Rum selling is still in the world's eye respectable, so that tolerably good men, as the world goes, engage in it, if not without scruple, at least without shame, and it is deemed essential to the perfection of a public house of entertainment? Surely, surely, there must be a speedy end of this.

VERMONT.—Returns from 226 towns give the following aggregates of Representatives: Whig 113; Loco 63; Birney 11; Whig over all others 39; No choice in 39 towns.

MAINE.—A meeting of Independent Democrats convened at Bangor on the 8th inst. and nominated Gen. ALFRED JOHNSON of Belfast for Governor. JOHN L. HAYES of Brunswick for Congress, and a Senate ticket for Penobscot County.

Gov. Wright and the Canal Bill.

The Independent Republican reiterates its charge that Gov. Wright induced six Senators to absent themselves from the vote on the 14th of August, and that he was the editor of that paper the smallest evidence to sustain his charge. Does he know, or does any one know, that Gov. Wright was not present at the meeting?

Our testimony is at the service of the Telegraph. It is because of the fact that the Canal Bill, for the reason that it placed $1,000,000 in the hands of the opponents of the Canal, to be used, as we believed, for no good purpose. Finding the bill opposed, also, by Gov. WILKINSON's friends in the Senate, we withdrew our support from it in defeating it. But to our amazement, when the vote was to be taken, the very Senators with whom in our simplicity, we were acting against the bill, glided out of the Chamber, and voted for it. This fact, taken in connection with the circumstance that the veto was mostly written before the bill passed, led us to suppose that the parts which the Governor and his Senators were to play, had been rehearsed. [A. E. J. J.]

STRENGTH.—Capt. A. GORHAM of the old favorite steamer Troy, is to take command of the splendid steamer Troy America; she having been chartered by the Troy Association to run in connection with the Niagara for the remainder of the season. Success attend her.

The new steamer—the most splendid of any which has yet graced our waters—known as the George Washington, but that is not her name, is about ready to take her place on the Hudson in the People's Line. She will be a sight worth seeing.

ACCIDENT TO THE STEAMER SAGE GOYA.—We regret to learn that the steamer Sage Goya, Capt. Price, on her passage from this port for Rochester, was captured on Cape Cod Ledges, on Saturday morning, and that the vessel was wrecked, and the crew and passengers rescued.

The American Colonization Society will send an Expedition to Liberia, from Norfolk, Va. via, about the 15th of November.

The citizens of Baltimore presented Capt. ADAM K. K. one of the Heroes of the Rio Grande, with a sword on Wednesday evening last.

Before entering upon any particular observations on the Tariff of 1846, it is proper to state that the Tariff of 1846, may be included in a few general suggestions, bearing on the Tariff controversy at large.

And first, we remark, that none of those who have so ably and so successfully carried out the Tariff of 1846, are to be regarded as infallible. The Tariff of 1846, is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy.

It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy.

It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy.

It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy.

It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy.

It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy.

It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy.

It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy.

It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy.

It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy.

It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy.

It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy.

It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy.

It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy.

It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy.

It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy.

It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy.

It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy.

It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy. It is a compromise, and as such, it is not to be regarded as a final settlement of the Tariff controversy.

WASHINGTON, FRIDAY NIGHT.

We have Orleans dates to the 4th. The steamer Jas. L. Day arrived there on the 3d, from Lavaca, whence she sailed the 1st inst. Nothing of interest going on. A small party of troops only remained at that post, the main body having marched for the interior.

Lieut. Whitman in command at Indian point, was compelled by disturbances there, to proclaim martial law. The Jas. L. Day left at Lavaca, schooner Highlander and Stran. At Indian point, schooner Sea, from New York, left at Indian point, Orleans, also back Mipang, at Deskey's Point. Steam propeller Florida, brig Henry, sch. Char. Lang, six sail in the offing.

PAPERS ON LITERATURE AND ART. By S. M. GARDNER. Parts I. II. (Pp. 144, 184, 120.) New York: Putnam's Library of American Books, No. 112, N. Y.

The simple statement that a selection of Margaret Fuller's writings has been submitted to the public, is perhaps all that is appropriate in these columns. Her author is so widely known as long preceding over the Literary department of the Tribune, as is also the fact that, though at present in Europe, her connection with this journal is unbroken, but will be maintained through a series of letters from the Old World, that to speak of her and of these volumes as we think they merit might be plausibly regarded as indirect commendation of our own columns. A few words with regard to some of her prominent characteristics are all we shall proffer.

Marked individuality, true independence, we reckon first among these. Sympathizing freely with all lofty and generous aims, Miss Fuller belongs to no sect, to no party. You rarely perceive in her writings expressions, that it is woman who speaks to you, though if reminded of the circumstance, you find nothing inconsistent in the circumstance. You meet no special display of delicacy or sentiment, but the lucid and vigorous outpouring of a clear, cultivated, lofty human intellect, enriched by a thoughtful observation of Life and the amplest acquaintance with Literature. Each sentence embodies an idea which has not been entrusted to paper.

A Committee of both branches of the Common Council of the city of New-York, in pursuance of a joint resolution of the municipal authorities visited the Dutch Frigate Jaxon, now lying off the Battery in the Hudson River. The Committee consisted of Messrs. Benson, Stoenell, Brady, Hart, Johnson, Dodd, and McElrath, accompanied by the Dutch Consul, Mr. Zimmermann, and a distinguished Dutch merchant, Mr. Faver.

On reaching the deck of the Frigate the Committee were introduced to Commodore WILLIAMS, and the whole of the crew, who were all in uniform. The Commodore, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, tending to the officers the hospitalities of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

WASHINGTON, FRIDAY NIGHT.

We have Orleans dates to the 4th. The steamer Jas. L. Day arrived there on the 3d, from Lavaca, whence she sailed the 1st inst. Nothing of interest going on. A small party of troops only remained at that post, the main body having marched for the interior.

Lieut. Whitman in command at Indian point, was compelled by disturbances there, to proclaim martial law. The Jas. L. Day left at Lavaca, schooner Highlander and Stran. At Indian point, schooner Sea, from New York, left at Indian point, Orleans, also back Mipang, at Deskey's Point. Steam propeller Florida, brig Henry, sch. Char. Lang, six sail in the offing.

PAPERS ON LITERATURE AND ART. By S. M. GARDNER. Parts I. II. (Pp. 144, 184, 120.) New York: Putnam's Library of American Books, No. 112, N. Y.

The simple statement that a selection of Margaret Fuller's writings has been submitted to the public, is perhaps all that is appropriate in these columns. Her author is so widely known as long preceding over the Literary department of the Tribune, as is also the fact that, though at present in Europe, her connection with this journal is unbroken, but will be maintained through a series of letters from the Old World, that to speak of her and of these volumes as we think they merit might be plausibly regarded as indirect commendation of our own columns. A few words with regard to some of her prominent characteristics are all we shall proffer.

Marked individuality, true independence, we reckon first among these. Sympathizing freely with all lofty and generous aims, Miss Fuller belongs to no sect, to no party. You rarely perceive in her writings expressions, that it is woman who speaks to you, though if reminded of the circumstance, you find nothing inconsistent in the circumstance. You meet no special display of delicacy or sentiment, but the lucid and vigorous outpouring of a clear, cultivated, lofty human intellect, enriched by a thoughtful observation of Life and the amplest acquaintance with Literature. Each sentence embodies an idea which has not been entrusted to paper.

A Committee of both branches of the Common Council of the city of New-York, in pursuance of a joint resolution of the municipal authorities visited the Dutch Frigate Jaxon, now lying off the Battery in the Hudson River. The Committee consisted of Messrs. Benson, Stoenell, Brady, Hart, Johnson, Dodd, and McElrath, accompanied by the Dutch Consul, Mr. Zimmermann, and a distinguished Dutch merchant, Mr. Faver.

On reaching the deck of the Frigate the Committee were introduced to Commodore WILLIAMS, and the whole of the crew, who were all in uniform. The Commodore, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, tending to the officers the hospitalities of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Commodore WILLIAMS replied, that he felt grateful for the honor shown him and the officers under his command, and was extremely gratified by the visit from the Committee of the Corporation of the City of New-York. He then, in a friendly and courteous manner, delivered to the Committee a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Council, accompanied by a brief and pertinent speech, in which the veteran Admiral took good care to claim the genuineness of his Hollandian ancestry, and his love of ancient Dutch customs.

Religious Items.—Free Episcopal Church of the Good Shepherd, corner of Market and Munroe streets, Rev. Ralph Hoyt, rector. Services to-morrow as usual, commencing at 10 A. M. and 3 P. M.

Rev. Mr. McIntire, recently from Cambridge, Mass., will preach before the Third Unitarian Society in Columbian Hall to-morrow afternoon and evening. Seats free.

Services will be resumed to-morrow in the Allen-st. Presbyterian Church.

Religious Services at the South Baptist Church, Nassau-st. to-morrow morning and evening.

Dr. J. C. Smith, graduate in the Chapel of the Union Theological Seminary, University place to-morrow morning and evening.

Professor Wm. Cochran preaches to-morrow morning and afternoon at the Free Congregational Church, Sullivan-st.

The Musical Propriety.—The newspaper press has been so far more distinguished for its extravagance when speaking on the subject of the Fine Arts, and especially Music. This must inevitably be the case while Art and an experience of its thrilling and exalted influences are new. All intellectual processes are extravagant and partly grotesque in their early stages.

But the musical prophecies we have before spoken of, who gave their second concert at the Apollo on Thursday evening, are in every way worthy objects of admiration and enthusiasm. We are certain that nothing like their equals can be found or seen in this country.

Throughout the performances of these children which we have heretofore supposed belonged only to full grown artists. The strength, rapidity and equality of the little girls' fingers upon the Piano were the subject of unmitigated praise and enthusiastic delight among all the critics and artists both native and foreign, who listened. Her playing is not only astonishing for a child of nine, but even for a woman.

And when we consider that this child is really but nine years old, the powerful effects she produces may be truly said to be the most wonderful of the kind. Her power, her patience and presence are so indispensable to the success of any artist in New-York, that the real and unexaggerated merit of these five children, who are so much to be admired, is almost lost.

But the musical prophecies we have before spoken of, who gave their second concert at the Apollo on Thursday evening, are in every way worthy objects of admiration and enthusiasm. We are certain that nothing like their equals can be found or seen in this country.

Throughout the performances of these children which we have heretofore supposed belonged only to full grown artists. The strength, rapidity and equality of the little girls' fingers upon the Piano were the subject of unmitigated praise and enthusiastic delight among all the critics and artists both native and foreign, who listened. Her playing is not only astonishing for a child of nine, but even for a woman.

And when we consider that this child is really but nine years old, the powerful effects she produces may be truly said to be the most wonderful of the kind. Her power, her patience and presence are so indispensable to the success of any artist in New-York, that the real and unexaggerated merit of these five children, who are so much to be admired, is almost lost.

But the musical prophecies we have before spoken of, who gave their second concert at the Apollo on Thursday evening, are in every way worthy objects of admiration and enthusiasm. We are certain that nothing like their equals can be found or seen in this country.

Throughout the performances of these children which we have heretofore supposed belonged only to full grown artists. The strength, rapidity and equality of the little girls' fingers upon the Piano were the subject of unmitigated praise and enthusiastic delight among all the critics and artists both native and foreign, who listened. Her playing is not only astonishing for a child of nine, but even for a woman.

And when we consider that this child is really but nine years old, the powerful effects she produces may be truly said to be the most wonderful of the kind. Her power, her patience and presence are so indispensable to the success of any artist in New-York, that the real and unexaggerated merit of these five children, who are so much to be admired, is almost lost.

But the musical prophecies we have before spoken of, who gave their second concert at the Apollo on Thursday evening, are in every way worthy objects of admiration and enthusiasm. We are certain that nothing like their equals can be found or seen in this country.

Throughout the performances of these children which we have heretofore supposed belonged only to full grown artists. The strength, rapidity and equality of the little girls' fingers upon the Piano were the subject of unmitigated praise and enthusiastic delight among all the critics and artists both native and foreign, who listened. Her playing is not only astonishing for a child of nine, but even for a woman.

And when we consider that this child is really but nine years old, the powerful effects she produces may be truly said to be the most wonderful of the kind. Her power, her patience and presence are so indispensable to the success of any artist in New-York, that the real and unexaggerated merit of these five children, who are so much to be admired, is almost lost.

But the musical prophecies we have before spoken of, who gave their second concert at the Apollo on Thursday evening, are in every way worthy objects of admiration and enthusiasm. We are certain that nothing like their equals can be found or seen in this country.

Throughout the performances of these children which we have heretofore supposed belonged only to full grown artists. The strength, rapidity and equality of the little girls' fingers upon the Piano were the subject of unmitigated praise and enthusiastic delight among all the critics and artists both native and foreign, who listened. Her playing is not only astonishing for a